

A STORY OF EARLY'S RAID

WHEN THE CONFEDERATES FIRST ARRIVED IN GETTYSBURG

The Experiences of a Young Girl on the Night of June 24th, 1863.

There are a few people living in Gettysburg now who were living here at the date mentioned above, who will remember that East High street was not a street of residences.

On the south side of the street between Baltimore and Stratton there were two small houses, a brick school building and the jail. On the north side were two houses, between which was a brick building used for school purposes. This building had high stone steps leading up to the entrance. The present High street school building was comparatively a new one at that time. The Reformed Church was on the corner, but has been improved and enlarged since then.

This was the day Gen. Early made the raid on the town, and the requisition or demand for supplies of food, clothing, etc. The Burgess being absent from town, it was the duty of the president of the town council to reply. Mr. Kendehardt's reply is well known. The original document is still in the possession of the family.

About 4 P. M. was the time the Rebels entered the town. The fifth-ists looking pack of men we had ever seen, and they had the audacity to call themselves Southern chivalry.

As supper time drew near two of these men made their appearance at the kitchen door of a certain house on Baltimore street, asking for permission to cook their supper. Mother said she would be getting the family meal shortly. They replied they had the food if she would permit them the privilege of cooking. Their supply consisted of eggs which in all probability they had stolen from some of our farmers.

When supper was ready they sat down to eat with the family, but would not partake of the food, until they saw the rest eat of it.

While at the table eating the front door-bell rang. I answered the ring. On opening the door can you imagine my surprise and fear on seeing a man, a very large man, dressed in the uniform of a Rebel officer.

He inquired for the man of the house. He wanted to see him. Trembling from head to foot, I replied I would see (although I knew he was eating his supper). I went back to the kitchen and leaned over my father's shoulder and whispered in his ear, there was a Rebel officer at the door and wanted to see him.

Immediately he arose from the table, motioned me to follow him. He climbed the fence into our next door neighbor's yard, and said, go and tell him I am not in.

When I delivered that message the Rebel replied, that is strange. I saw him go into the yard a while ago. Well I'll be back again. I need some wearing apparel for my men. My father was one of the business men of town.

When the officer went from the door, the lady of the next house called to me that my father wanted to see me. I went in to see him and tell him just what the officer had said. My father replied, well I'll not be home tonight; now I want you to meet me at the Reformed church at nine o'clock, then I will tell you what I want you to do.

I should say here, perhaps, that my father being one of the municipal officers deemed it wise to absent himself from home at this time in view of the demand Gen. Early had made for supplies earlier in the afternoon, and to which Mr. Kendehardt had given a courteous but decided refusal.

In the meantime the two men after eating just remained sitting in the kitchen, in fact, my recollection is, they were not asked into any other part of the house.

By the time these men were leaving we noticed a very bright light in the northeastern part of town. Oh, mother said, you are not going to burn the town, are you? Oh, no, they replied, but if there is any public property here that may be destroyed, we learned it was the railroad bridge and cars that were in the yard.

Nine P. M., the time I was to meet my father a drizzling rain began to fall during the evening; the streets were dark. We did not have electric lights those nights. Taking my brother next younger than I we made our way to the church corner; really the only light was the reflection from the bridge fire.

Approaching the church we noticed two men, and were almost afraid to go near, fearing they were Rebel soldiers, but they proved to be two of our citizens who lived on the top of Baltimore Hill viewing the fire.

Presently I saw someone coming up that little rise of ground to the south, which proved to be my father. He sent me to a house not far from my own home to ask if the lady's father had left town. Her father was the revenue collector and had left town during the afternoon. If he had gone, I was to go to another house, who were particular friends of our family, and ask that man to go and meet my father which he did. The two wended their way out the "town path," which every Gettysburg boy knew so well, to McAllister's

Mill. The officer did not return. However, the family spent a very anxious and restless night, not knowing what minute the Rebels would return and search the store room and house, and no one to protect us but a boy of about sixteen who was employed by my father.

The following morning (Saturday) the Rebels, some of whom had occupied the Court House during the night, paraded our college boys out on the pavement in front of the Court House and paroled them.

A few days before, in answer to the Governor's call for troops to protect the border, the college boys had formed a company and offered their services to the Governor, and were the first to be sworn in "for the emergency," having been sent up the Chambersburg pike these inexperienced handful of men were captured by the larger and well disciplined body of the enemy.

Then the Rebel horde left Gettysburg for York and Philadelphia, which would have proved a tempting bait for them, with a view of getting to Harrisburg. The town was left in a state of great excitement, not knowing what would happen next. Learning they had gone my father and companion returned home during the day.

Sunday a detachment of Union cavalry entered town, following up Early, coming from the direction of Emmitsburg.

You can imagine they were hailed with joy by our citizens. The next few days were "days" of anxiety and fear, troops coming and going, which finally on Wednesday, July 1st, culminated in the great three days' battle.

A Lightning Bolt Joker.

During an electrical storm last week the house of John W. Weaver on South street, McSherrytown was the butt of a lightning bolt joker. It entered the building at the cornice which it shattered, going down the house to the second floor tearing off the weather-boarding. From there it went into one of the sleeping rooms knocking holes in the plastering and tearing the flooring into shreds, the force of the same driving slivers of the wood into the ceiling of the room.

It then followed the gas pipe in the ceiling to the dining room, where it tore plaster from the same and throwing it over the table and the family who were in the room. All the family were shocked but not seriously. After breaking window panes in various parts of the house it passed out in the pantry. The damage is estimated at several hundred dollars. It is fully covered.

The bolt knocked into shreds the old adage about not striking twice in the same place. Several years ago Mrs. Lewis Martin was killed near the same place by a stroke of lightning.

60th Anniversary of Battle.

The sixtieth anniversary of the three days Battle of Gettysburg will be celebrated and Battery B, 16th Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Meyer, will arrive in Gettysburg July 1st under command of Col. Hawkins, and will take part in any part of the celebration to which assigned. The battery is composed of 3 officers, 116 men, and 91 horses. The battery may be here ten days to two weeks, and will be given a camping site.

The business men have been canvassed to pay for the expenses of the celebration and about one thousand dollars have already been subscribed and it is believed the money will be forthcoming for all expenses.

The Boosters' Club, Corporal Skelly Post of the G. A. R., and the local Camp of Sons of Veterans, with the American Legion Chapter agreed upon Clyde L. Bream as general supervisor of the celebration. Pastors of the churches have been asked to open the celebration with special appropriate sermons. Sunday evening there will be a band concert in the Square.

For Monday a band concert is scheduled for Spangler's Spring with a demonstration by the Battery on Pardee Field. Monday afternoon the activities will be transferred to Little Round Top with an artillery demonstration. A band concert in the Square follows in the evening. Special exercises and maneuvers are planned for July 3 and July 4.

Big Barn Near Town Burns.

The barn on the farm of Mrs. John Hughes was destroyed by fire on Wednesday evening with contents, part of hay crop and farming implements. One cow was lost and a mule was badly burnt. The barn is on the Mill road, south of Lincoln Highway. The origin of the fire is unknown. No one is known to have been near the building. The Gettysburg Fire Company rushed to the fire but the water in but one of the wells could be reached and was quickly exhausted in wetting the house and other buildings which were saved. The loss is likely to run over $7,000 and it is partly covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gilbert, Chambersburg street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mildred Gilbert, and Ralph F. Shrader, son of Mrs. M. C. Shrader, of Harrisburg. Date for wedding has not been fixed.

THE STARS AND STRIPES

PROPER USE OF THE FLAG FOR DECORATING PURPOSES.

Good Taste and Common Sense Have Established Ways for Proper Use of Flag.

As the time of the year is at hand when the Stars and Stripes are used greatly for decoration purposes, the proper method of displaying, hanging and saluting should be observed, for it would be a very simple matter to demonstrate improper methods which would reflect on one's Americanism, good taste and common sense. The best authoritative statement seen on the uses of the U. S. flag was in a recent issue of the "Recruiting News." There is no federal law that may be used as guide, in fact the "News" states there are but four Federal laws on the statute books that have any bearing on the subject, one, the Act of Congress, approved Feb. 20, 1905 (33 Sta. L. p. 725), providing that a trade mark cannot be registered which consists of or comprises, inter alia, the flag, coat of arms, or insignia of the United States, or any simulation thereof; the second, a joint resolution of Congress approved May 8, 1914, authorizing the display of the flag on Mother's Day; the third, providing certain penalties for the desecration, mutilation, or improper use of the flag, within the District of Columbia, and the fourth providing, when the country of the United States is at war, for the dismissal from the service of any employee or official of the United States Government who criticizes in an abusive or violent manner the flag of the United States.

Several States of the Union have enacted laws which have more or less bearing upon the general subject, but it seems probable that many counties and municipalities have also passed ordinances concerning this matter to govern action within their own jurisdiction.

Attention is called to a warning against desecration of the flag in any way which was issued by the Department of Justice, to Federal attorneys and marshals. This states that any enemy alien tearing down mutilating, abusing or desecrating the flag in any way will be regarded as a danger to the public peace within the meaning of the declaration of the President issued April 6, 1917. It is within the province of the War Department to prescribe rules and regulations governing the method of displaying, hanging and saluting the flag, for observance within the Army, but it has no similar authority over civilians.

There are, however, certain fundamental rules of heraldry which if understood generally would indicate the proper method of displaying the flag. There are also certain rules of good taste which, if observed, would preclude the improper use of the flag. The matter becomes a very simple one and the answers to the various questions which arise will be evident if it is kept in mind that the national flag represents the living country and is itself considered as a living thing.

Union of Flag Is Honor Point.

The union of the flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm and therefore the point of danger and hence the place of honor. The staff edge of the flag is the heraldic dexter or right edge. When the national flag is carried, as in a procession, with another flag or flags, the place of the national flag is on the right, i. e., the flag's own right. When the national flag and another flag are displayed together, as against a wall from crossed staffs, the national flag should be on the right, the flag's own right; i. e., the observer's left, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag. When a number of flags are grouped and displayed from staffs the national flag should be in the center or at the highest point of the group.

When the national flag is hung either horizontally or vertically against a wall the union should be uppermost to the flag's own right; i. e., to the observer's left. When displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from a window sill or the front of a building, the same rules should be observed; the union should go clear to the "truck," as the peak of the staff is called, unless the flag be at half staff. When the flag is suspended between buildings so as to hang over the middle of the street, a simple rule is to hang the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

When the flags of cities or penants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the national flag, the national flag must always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the national flag should be hoisted first. There is a chaplain's flag authorized in army regulations, but there is no church pennant prescribed. Neither the chaplain's flag nor any other flag or pennant is authorized to be placed above or to the right of the national flag.

International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of any other nation in time of peace. When the flags of two or more nations are to be displayed, they should be flown from separate staffs, or from separate halyards, of equal size and on the same level.

Not for Use as Chair Drapery.

1924 DEMOCRATIC ISSUES.

Cordell Hull, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee this week outlined the 1924 presidential campaign and gave convincing reasons why he believes President Harding can not be re-elected.

"The rank and file of the American voters have been accustomed to judge national administrations by results as they come home to the voter," said the Democratic chairman. "The first inquiry that will arise in the mind of the voter next year will be, why should we desire another four years of Harding and so-called Harding 'normalcy' in the light of recent experience? Why should a political party that promised more, and, after being entrusted with power, performed less than any other party in our history, receive an indorsement in 1924?"

"Why should a party whose dominant leaders pledged themselves to exercise initiative vision, constructive ability and aggressive leadership, but instead has given the country just the opposite, have any particular claim upon the favor of the voters next year?"

Taking up the farmers as a group, Judge Hull indicates the reasons why he believes the agricultural regions will refuse to stand for Harding for a second term.

"Why should American farmers desire another four years of Harding

'normalcy' in the light of the fact that they are $30,000,000,000 worse off today than on day President Harding was elected, while their future appears ominous and almost hopeless? Why should they favor a continuance of the Harding high tariff policy, which, after a thorough test, has convinced the farmer that it means sky-high prices for all he must buy and at the same time is powerless to raise the price of the farmer's products, or even to prevent them from going lower, as in the case of wheat, meat and several other staple products?"

Chairman Hull points out that while Canada has greatly increased her wheat exports, those of the United States have greatly decreased because of the failure of the Harding Administration to co-operate financially and economically with European and other customers in order to maintain stable conditions and a reciprocal relation.

"The farmers," he said, "from disastrous experience can now behold the incalculable and irreparable losses that have befallen America and the world as a result of the course of dominant Republican leaders in playing vicious selfish politics with our foreign affairs during 1919 and 1920, with the result that the present Administration thus far has been wholly unable to formulate any definite or comprehensive program with respect to either domestic or foreign affairs."

"Why should the American laborer be enamored of the Harding Administration in the light of the fact that the high cost of living, created chiefly by the monstrous Fordney-McCumber high tariff, prevents labor, or any other class of persons, except the favored special interests, from laying by any savings; and of the fact that the Administration is hopelessly dominated by this group of special privileges, which is most injurious to the cause of labor, and most selfish in gobbling up for themselves every special benefit the Government is able to bestow; and of the fact that whenever there is a conflict between the rights, interests and welfare of labor and those of special privilege the present Administration invariably sides with the latter."

"Why should the average business man feel any friendship or gratitude toward the Harding Administration in the light of his condition after two and one-half years of 'normalcy,' compared, for example, with the years 1919 and 1920 under Democratic rule: when his business is confronted with hopeless uncertainty as to the future and he is utterly unable to plan ahead on account of the operation of wholly unsound domestic and foreign economic policies, to the extent that the present administration has any economic policies, and when he knows that under wise and efficient Federal administration the country should be blessed with sound, stable, permanent business conditions?"

"Why should those American producers and manufacturers subject to no competitive imports and deriving no benefits from the existing high tariff, desire to perpetuate for another four years an administration whose every economic policy is seriously handicapping the sound development of our international commerce on which alone their own business expansion and prosperity in the future depend?"

CLEAN ROCK CREEK.

There has been a lot of talk these hot days, or hot talk, of the same old Rock Creek that has been sending up its stinking breath to the heavens like it has been doing for many years. Doing it against the protest of all who must endure it. It is no worse now than it has ever been in any hot summer weather, the wonder is, however, that there is any one left to smell the stink. The description this week of the INTIMATE investigation of the authorities in sticking their noses wherever there was a small sounds somewhat like opera bouffe. This is a town of good citizenship, over 800 to 28 for good streets, and there is good reason for the confidence that when the remedy and cost thereof is submitted to our people, that the Golden Rule will win, doing unto others as you would have them do to you. All the people have made Rock Creek what it is and a big majority will vote for its cleaning.

Hogs at Lowest Prices Since 1912.

Hogs on foot in Chicago are bringing the lowest prices recorded since January, 1912, the last year of the Taft (Republican) administration. The price went as low as $6.75 a hundredweight. Cattle as well as hogs are selling at very low figures.

In March, 1921, the months the Harding administration came into power, and sixty days before the "special agricultural tariff" was enacted, the average price of hogs in Chicago was $9.42 a hundredweight. In December that year, after the "agricultural tariff" had been in operation for six months, and the Government had been in the hands of the Republican administration for three-quarters of a year, the average price of hogs in Chicago was $6.92 a hundredweight. Meantime the value of the hog at the farm had declined from $8.58 to $6.52 a hundred pounds. The present Fordney-McCumber profiteers' tariff, which was supposed to "protect" the producer of hogs and other livestock, has been as much of a failure so far as the farmers of the country are concerned as its Republican predecessor, "the special agricultural tariff." For the last nine months there has been a duty of 50 cents a hundred pounds on hogs, of 75 cents a hundred on fresh pork, and of 2 cents a pound on "bacon, hams, shoulders, and other pork, prepared or preserved," but it has not kept the price of the farmer's hogs from slumping.

Farmers have learned from costly experience that the Republican tariffs of the last two years have done little or nothing to stimulate the prices of agricultural products or make the production of foodstuffs a profitable enterprise. On the contrary, the tariff has cost the farmers of the country—according to the experts of the Farm Bureau Federation—about $300,000,000 a year more than it has benefited them.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, etc. C. H. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

TAPS FOR A DYING VETERAN

SOUNDED AT HIS REQUEST WHILE IN HIS LAST ILLNESS.

This Was on Memorial Day, and Three Weeks Later He Had Fallen Into His Last Sleep.

Michael Hoke, one of the oldest of Emmitsburg's citizens and well known to many Adams county people, passed away last week in his 81st year. Though born in York he came to Emmitsburg when 2 years of age and lived in latter place his entire life, engaged in business. He was a veteran of the Civil War and had the unusual distinction of having Taps sounded for him at his request before his death. It was on last Memorial Day. He requested that the parade should stop in front of his residence, and that Taps should be sounded, as he stated that it would be the last time he would hear the familiar sound. His request was granted and he was greatly pleased with the consideration shown him. A solemn funeral mass was celebrated at his funeral in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Emmitsburg, and after the body was lowered into its last resting place three volleys were fired across his grave. Mr. Hoke is survived by one brother, Wm. Hoke, of Emmitsburg, and the following children: Mrs. Wm. Rosensteel, Harry Hoke, and Cleveland Hoke, of Baltimore; Mrs. S. R. Minnich, Mrs. Louis Doner, and Mrs. John Fortney, of Carlisle, and Jos. Hoke, of Emmitsburg.

Paul Slaybaugh, 10-year-old son of Garfield Slaybaugh, of Gettysburg, was killed on Monday while at work on the farm of John Groscoft, near Hunterstown. The boy had been making his home with the Groscofts for several years, and with Mr. Groscoft he had taken the hay wagon out of the barn and made some repairs.

As the wagon was taken back into the barn the boy stood against the side of the building, but he evidently misjudged the distance between the barn and the wagon and as the latter passed him he was struck by the bolster on the side of the vehicle, which turned him completely around and pierced his lungs, causing immediate death. Funeral was on Wednesday afternoon at the Reformed Church, New Chester, by Rev. I. S. Ditzler, and interment in adjoining cemetery.

George Washington Null, a well known blacksmith and machinist of Greenmount, died at his home on Thursday evening of last week after an eight months' illness from cancer aged 74 years, 8 months and 11 days. He was born near Harney, Md., and spent his boyhood there. He moved to Adams county in 1869 and for the past thirty-five years has resided in Greenmount. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Catherine Harner, one son, John S. Null, of Greenmount, and one sister, Mrs. Emma Howe, of Gettysburg. Funeral services were on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. L. K. Young, pastor of the Mt. Joy Lutheran Church, of which Mr. Null was a member, with interment in the cemetery adjoining the church.

Mrs. Leah Jacobs Harbold, widow of Peter Harbold, formerly of East Berlin, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Firestone, near Mulberry, York county, on Thursday of last week aged 81 years, 8 months and 13 days, and is survived by one son, Prof. P. M. Harbold, of F. & M. College, Lancaster; and two daughters, Mrs. Firestone, with whom she resided, and Mrs. C. S. Myers, York. Funeral was held Sunday with services and interment at Mummert's Meeting House.

Joseph Shoemaker died Wednesday of last week at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel Baker, of Buchanan Valley, aged 83 years, 10 months and 27 days. He was a member of St. Ignatius' Catholic Church and is survived by the following children: Mrs. Isaac Fisher, Mrs. Isaac Lentz and Mrs. Baker, all of Buchanan Valley, and George Shoemaker of Shippensburg; also one brother, Wesley Shoemaker of Greenwood. The funeral was held Saturday morning by Rev. Will W. Whalen and interment at St. Ignatius cemetery.

Mrs. Emma J. Mosebrook, widow of the late Jacob Mosebrook, of Spring Grove, York county, died Sunday morning at the home of her brother, Frank Spangler of Jefferson, to which place she was removed several weeks ago on account of her failing health. She had been suffering from cancer of the stomach and a complication of diseases. Her age was 53 years, 3 months and 4 days. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. George Hamm, of Gettysburg and one son, Joseph Mosebrook at home.

Ruth Ellen Rummel, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rummel, died at her home near Arendtsville, June 21 aged 1 year, 3 months and 9 days. Besides her parents she leaves one sister, Margaret, and four brothers, Charles, Robert, Wilmer and Edward, all at home. Funeral services were on last Saturday afternoon by Rev. T. C. Hesson, pastor of the Arendtsville Reformed Church with interment in the Arendtsville cemetery.

Ellis Bucher died at the Annie M. Warner Hospital on Thursday at the age of 37 years, 7 months and 11 days. He had taken ill several weeks ago and a congestion of the lungs developed, resulting in his death. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Bucher, of this place, and was a great favorite with everyone, being known to his many friends as "Mike" Bucher. He learned the barber trade and spent thirteen years with H. B. Sefton and seven last years with Brady Sefton. The funeral will be on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, services in charge of Rev. Earl J. Bowman and interment in the Evergreen cemetery. He was married to Miss May Eyer who survives with a daughter, Geraldine, and besides his parents he leaves a sister, Miss Carrie Bucher, of Baltimore.

THE STARS AND STRIPES.

flag be draped over chairs or benches, nor should any object or emblem of any kind be placed above or upon it, nor should it be hung where it can be easily contaminated or soiled. No lettering of any kind should ever be placed upon the flag. It should not be used as a portion of a woman's costume nor of a man's athletic clothing.

A very common misuse of the flag is the practice of embroidering the flag on cushions and handkerchiefs, and the printing of the flag on paper napkins. These practices, while not strictly a violation of any present Federal law, certainly are lacking in respect and dignity and can not be considered as evidence of good taste. The War Department sees no objection to flying the flag at night on civilian property, provided it is not flown for advertising purposes.

When flown at half staff the flag is always first hoisted to the peak, the honor point, and then slowly lowered to the half staff position in honor of those who gave their lives to their country, but before lowering the flag for the day it is raised again to the head of the staff, for the nation lives and the flag is the living symbol of the nation.

When the national flag is used on a bier or casket at a military funeral, the rule is the reverse of that for hanging vertically against the wall. The union should be placed at the head of the casket and over the left shoulder of the soldier. The casket should be carried foot first. The flag should not be lowered into the grave and in no case should it be allowed to touch the ground.

Old or worn-out flags should not be used either for banners or for any secondary purpose. When a flag is in such a condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should not be cast aside nor used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the national colors, but should be destroyed as a whole, privately, preferably by burning, or by some other method lacking in suggestion of irreverence or disrespect to the emblem representing our country.

MARRIAGES.

Gilbert-Bedient.—Hudnutt-Bedient.—A double wedding took place at Rest Cottage, this county, near Caldonia, on Tuesday evening. Ross K. Gilbert, editor of the Chambersburg Public Opinion, and brother known here under the name of "Biddie" Gilbert when he attended college, and Miss Ethel Bedient, publisher, of Flynia, Ohio, and Miss Marian Bedient were united in marriage by Rev. George A. McAllister, pastor of the Chambersburg Presbyterian Church. The brides are sisters, natives of Deckerville, Mich. Mrs. Hudnutt has been supervisor of music in the Chambersburg schools and Mrs. Gilbert has been director of the Harmon Foundation of New York in the organization of college loans and playgrounds establishment.

Topper—Sanders.—On Tuesday, June 26, Miss Rose Sanders, of Taneytown, and Paul Topper, of Bonneauville, were married at Taneytown at St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Gold-Coover.—On Thursday evening Miss Margaret Coover, daughter of Professor and Mrs. M. Coover, of Seminary Ridge, and Rev. H. R. Gold, of New Rochelle, N. J., were united in marriage. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride on the lawn under the beautiful canopy of trees and was witnessed by more than a hundred guests and friends. The ceremony was in charge of the father of the bride, Dr. M. Coover, assisted by Dr. A. E. Wagner. The attendants of the bride were Miss Ann Gililand, of Gettysburg, Miss Josephine Eisenhart, of York, and Miss McCauley, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Taylor. A reception followed the ceremony and later in the evening Rev. and Mrs. Gold left by automobile for Harrisburg. They will reside in New Rochelle, N. J., Rev. Gold being pastor of the Lutheran Church there.

Great Success.

The four-day festival and food sale of the Gettysburg Fire Company ending last Saturday was an unprecedented success, the total receipts being $1950. The net amount has not been announced and will be made known as soon as all bills are paid. Everyone was greatly pleased with the result.

Rate.

There is one woman in Indianapolis, who will have cause to reflect long on the uncertainty of life. Dishwashing being particularly distasteful to her, she hailed with joy her husband's announcement that an electric dishwasher was to be her birthday present and hurried down town to order one sent out. The obliging clerk, on being impressed with the strength of her desire to have the machine in the house before the evening meal, glibly promised to see that it was there. The woman was anxious to try it out as soon as it came. Accordingly, she solicited some dirty dishes from one of the neighbors who had her heavy meal at noon. The dishes were carried over in market baskets and deposited in the kitchen to await a demonstration. Four o'clock came and with it a vague uneasiness that later became a certainty, though telephone calls to the accommodating clerk brought forth the assurance that the machine would be there. At 5:45 she put on the dishpan and washed her neighbor's dishes. Then she took them home in the market baskets, a sadly disillusioned woman. Some time the next day the dishwasher arrived. — Indianapolis News.
